Press Preview: Friday 2 July

On Friday 2 July, The Children's Media Conference (CMC) and Site Gallery invite reviewers from local and national press to a private tour of the Playground exhibition from a member of the CMC team.

About Playground:

Part of The Children's Media Conference, Playground, is a ground-breaking interactive digital art exhibition for children and families. Taking place at Site from 1-11 July, the exhibition will focus on the theme of 'What If?'

Established in 2016, Playground is a 10-day exhibition where children can imagine, investigate, create art, and have fun. This year's exhibition will feature the internationally acclaimed character design studio TADO and Sheffield artist Kisha Bradley, who has teamed up with Wybourn School to produce a collaborative cutting-edge Augmented Reality (AR) project for the exhibition made entirely by children.

Additionally, national and international artists at this year's Playground include Julian Glander, Guillamit, House House, Tj Hughes, Will Hurt, Matthew Keff, Kinetic Landscape Collective, Sas and Yosh, Studio Pointer*, and Ustwo Games.

Families will have the opportunity to use their smartphones to find animated characters, which have been dotted around various locations in Sheffield by TADO. This is a brand-new interactive commission for Playground 2021.

The 'Playground' exhibition is suitable for 5–12-year-olds but everyone is welcome free of charge. In the light of Covid-safety protocols and capacity limits, prior booking is essential. Children with sensory requirements can also visit during The Quiet Hour sessions on 3 and 10 July, from 11am-12pm.

PLATFORM

27 JULY – 22 AUGUST

Tickets coming soon

Platform features work from five Sheffield based artists; James Clarkson, Maud Haya-Baviera, Victoria Lucas, Conor Rogers and Joanna Whittle, and presents a fascinating insight into the artists' work-in-progress developed during their two-year residency with Sheffield's visual arts organisations.

Platform is an established artistic development programme at Site Gallery which allows artists to explore new ideas in a public space, testing new thinking and research with engaged audiences. The exhibition will be presented at Site Gallery, Yorkshire Artspace and Bloc Projects.

These artists began their residencies in 2019 and are five of twenty from the Sheffield City Region, taking part in a rolling five-year initiative funded through the Freelands Artists Programme. Each artist receives a two-year paid residency which includes investment in professional development, production as well as opportunities to exhibit.
