

1 Intro Screen

A video piece displayed on a TV screen. Contains no sound or flashing imagery.

2 Interpretation video

A video played on a TV with spoken dialogue delivered through headphones. No flashing imagery.

3 Fake Fans (The Zines) + Bootleg Brainrot

A tactile reading area featuring paper zines and laminated folders to browse at your own pace.

4 Fake Fans (The Movie)

A large - scale projection showing a video with computer game music. Sound is played through two large speakers positioned at either end of the screen. A subwoofer near the screen may cause low-level vibrations.

5 Collection items

Three framed items are displayed on the wall for close-up viewing.

6 Serebll

Small sculptural figures encased in clear perspex, mounted on the wall.

7 Relics

Three large projections display 3D scans of objects. No audio or flashing visuals.

8 Fake Fans (The TCG)

Trading cards mounted on a wall.

9 Super Pika World

An interactive TV-based game featuring flashing visuals and low-volume computer game sounds.

10 Lu Ye Xian Zong (Wizard of Oz) + Titenic

Two interactive TV-based games featuring flashing visuals and low-volume computer game sounds.

For a further deep dive into the works of Fake Fans, fold out this sheet...